Our burndown chart was fairly accurate to the ideal velocity; the exception being the few days stretch in which no progress was made. Compared to previous sprints, this was an improvement in comparisons to other sprints as we've avoided loading a large portion of points to the last few days and we've stuck even closer to ideal velocity